ROAD TRIPS

■ Eternal Summers and the Beats will team up for a tour that runs from May 18 through June 9.

■ Elizabeth Cook has lined up a new run of tour dates, this time running from May 24 through July 9.

■ The noise rock duo Yvette will tour from May 28 through June 11.

■ Nicole Atkins has booked a run of dates from June 4-21, followed by another half dozen shows between June 30 and July 21.

■ Chris Garneau and Keren Ann will tour together from Jun 7-18.

■ Junior Boys will tour from June 9-25.

■ Hate Eternal and Origin will headline a summer tour from June 15 through July 14.

■ Jazzman Dave Koz has announced a 19-show summer tour (June 17 through Aug. 18), as well as his annual Dave Koz and Friends Christmas tour (Nov. 25 through Dec. 23). Rick Braun, Jonathan Butler and Candy Dulfer will join Koz on the holiday tour.

■ Taking Back Sunday (with its newly reunited original lineup) has announced a seven week tour (June 12 through July 31) behind its new self-titled CD (in stores June 28). Thursday, which has a new CD, "No Devolucion," out now, will open the shows, and Colour Revolt also is on the bill.

vocals sound as if he can't decide to emote in Perry's style or attempt to make his own mark.

He does try to redeem himself on "City of Hope," and even though he sounds less like Perry on the track, the fact that his vocals remain rather undistinguished is a problem that hangs over all of these songs no matter how well-constructed they might be.

Either way, that identity crisis is inescapable, and "Edge of the Moment," "Chain of Love" and "Resonate" are all paint-by-numbers meat and potatoes rock that could have been recorded by any faceless, corporate rock band circa 1982. At least back then, the band was more certain of its identity. Sadly, on "Eclipse," Journey sounds lost.
